Book Club

The next Book Club will be held Tuesday, May 22 at 11 am in the Media Center of the Education Building, followed by an optional lunch out. Everyone is invited.

The next book selection is The Origin of Sorrow by Robert Mayer. The book is available in paperback, used, on kindle, and the library may be able to order it for you. The link to order on Amazon is: <http://smile.amazon.com/ch/59-0915228>

It was a time of love, of struggle, of hope, of worship, of the birth of dynasties and the crushing affliction of hatred... In the 1770's, the Jews of Frankfurt are trapped both physically by the walls of the ghetto within which they must dwell, and in a larger sense by the rules of a society in which they are outcasts, legally debased and barely suffered to live. And yet within those confines they find life, in all the glories and tragedies. This is the story of a young girl Guttle, whose sweet face and curves could win her any man in her little world, but whose keen mind demands the best. It is the tale of Meyer Rothschild, who knows all the ways of the business world but discovers the ways of the heart. It is a tale of love and lust, of murder and betrayal, of holy works and unholy schemes, of bakers and brigands, of hope and of ruin. This is a novel, both amusing and sad, that will grace your bookshelf for generations— a book you will want your children to read and discuss as they reach maturity

Thank you

Todah Rabah to Rabbi Goldstein for inviting the congregation into his home last week for the open house and Passover Service.

The attendance was great and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the Passover desserts and the Rabbi's hospitality.
